ABOUT DOWNTOWN TOGETHER CLUBS

Our Downtown Together Club Initiative is grounded in research showing that community well-being improves when people regularly gather around shared interests. Research on “third places,” or informal spaces outside of home and work, shows that they strengthen social ties, reduce isolation, and help build more resilient neighborhoods. Downtown Together Clubs put this research into practice through offerings ranging from cooking workshops and film discussions to salsa dancing, knitting groups, book circles, and more. All club participants will also be invited to a community dinner in June, which reinforces the program’s emphasis on sustained, in-person connection.
